PHIL 1301

INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY

Mondays and Wednesdays 10:30-11:50

Undergraduate Learning Center 116

Professor: Amy Reed-Sandoval
Email: areedsandoval@utep.edu
Office Hours: Mondays and Wednesdays 2:00-3:00 and by appointment
Office Location: Worrell Hall 302

Teaching Assistants:
Eric Chavez
Email: echavez24@miners.utep.edu
Office Hours: Thursdays 2:00-4:00 and by appointment
Office Location: Worrell Hall, TA Office, 1st floor

Sergio Tarin
Email: smtarin@miners.utep.edu
Office Hours: Mondays 12:00-2:00 and by appointment
Office Location: Worrell Hall, TA Office, 1st floor

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The study of philosophy involves careful and intensive exploration of some of life’s most puzzling questions. Who am I? What does it mean to live a good life? What, if anything, is real and/or true? What, if anything, do I know? What, exactly, is justice and fairness—and how are these things to be implemented in society?

This course offers an introduction to some of these timeless questions, and to how a number of philosophers have attempted to answer them. We will focus, in particular, on three “big questions”: (1) What does it mean to be a philosopher, or to lead one’s life philosophically? (2) What is knowledge? and (3) What is justice?

As you explore these questions, you will gain experience reading critically a number of fascinating, yet challenging, philosophical texts. You will learn to identify main claims and evaluate argument structure. You will also gain confidence in assessing the merits of the arguments you encounter. You shall develop your philosophical writing skills by preparing biweekly, structured journal entries on the philosophical ideas you are engaging. You will analyze and debate philosophical questions with your peers in class, and you will explore the question of how to live your own life philosophically.

SPECIFIC LEARNING OBJECTIVES
• To gain familiarity with a number of important canonical and contemporary philosophical works
• To learn to read, closely and critically, difficult philosophical texts
• To gain competency identifying and explaining, in your own words, main claims and argument structure
• To develop critical thinking and writing skills as part of this process, and put these skills into practice in your regular journal assignments and in-class writing activities
• To learn to philosophize creatively about timeless philosophical questions
• To consider ways to be philosophical in one’s day-to-day life

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

• You will complete at least one in-class writing exercise during each lecture. This exercise will often consist in a “free-write” response to a philosophical question we are considering in class. You are allowed to miss/skip two of these in-class writing exercises. After that, your grade for this particular assignment (not for the full course) will be dropped by one letter grade for each in-class exercise that you miss.

• You will complete a number of journal entries about the assigned readings for various lectures. Each journal entry is due by 9:00am on the day of the lecture that corresponds with the readings on which you are writing your journal entry. Note that journal entries are not due for every day of class. It is your responsibility to check the syllabus to see if you are required to submit a journal for a particular day. Further instructions:

  1. Each journal entry should include two full paragraphs—no more and no less. In the first paragraph you will identify the main claim of the article(s) you have read, and the reasons that the philosopher has offered in support of that main claim. In the second paragraph you will reflect upon the philosophical argument you are assessing. Do you agree or disagree with the argument—and why? Further instructions for writing journal entries can be found at the end of this syllabus and on the slides from the first day of class.
  2. Note that late submissions will not be accepted under any conditions, so you should plan on submitting your journal entries before 9:00am to avoid any technical complications, etc.
  3. Journal entries will be graded on a Pass/Fail basis. You are allowed to fail and/or skip two journal entries without negative consequences for your grade. After this point, you will be dropped one full letter grade for each journal entry that you fail and/or miss. There will be one extra credit opportunity for journal assignments.
  4. Do not email your instructors to find out if a journal entry is due for a particular day. We will not respond to these emails, as the information is available on the syllabus.
You will take a midterm and a final exam.

Final notes: for the first three weeks of class, the TAs will send (individual) emails to those who have failed a journal entry with an explanation for why that assignment was failed. After that, it is the student’s responsibility to make an appointment with the TA to discuss what her/his assignment was failed.

GRADERS

- Journal entries – 40%
- In-class writing exercises – 30%
- Midterm exam – 15%
- Final exam – 15%

RULES AND GENERAL EXPECTATIONS

- If you want to use a laptop in class, you must sit in the front rows. You are expected to use your laptop respectfully (i.e. for purposes of note-taking only). If you are caught accessing inappropriate content on your laptop (that is, if you are caught using your laptop for something other than note-taking purposes), you will not be permitted to turn in your in-class free-write for the day. Furthermore, you may be asked to leave the class. There will be times during class when I ask you to close your laptops. If you do not do this during the designated times, you will not be permitted to turn in your in-class writing activity, and you may be asked to leave the class. Laptops are a privilege, not a right; the instructor has the right to prohibit laptop use at her discretion.

- Texting and other phone use is also prohibited in class unless special permission is sought from and granted by Dr. Reed-Sandoval. If you are caught texting or using your phone, you will not be permitted to turn in your in-class writing exercise. You may also be asked to leave the class.

- Filming, photographing and otherwise recording lecture is prohibited unless special permission is sought from and granted by Dr. Reed-Sandoval.

- Please bring your textbook to class each day, and also a paper that you will use and turn in for your free-write activities.

- Be respectful of others (that is, of your fellow students and instructors). Raise your hand if you wish to speak. Do not interrupt, demean, or otherwise disrespect others. This list of problematic behaviors is not exhaustive; other forms of disrespectful behavior will not be tolerated.

- Do not start packing up your bag to leave until class is dismissed. If you are caught doing this you will not be allowed to turn in your in-class writing assignment for the day.
• Academic integrity is a legitimate concern for every member of the campus community; all share in upholding the fundamental values of honesty, trust, respect, fairness, responsibility, and professionalism. By choosing to join the UTEP community, students accept the expectations of the Scholastic Dishonesty Policy and are encouraged when faced with choices to always take the morally sound path. Students enrolling in UTEP assume the obligation to conduct themselves in a manner compatible with UTEPs function as an educational institution. Students should review the university’s policies at: http://admin.utep.edu/Default.aspx?PageContentID=2084&tabid=30292

• UTEP seeks to provide equal access to its programs, services and activities for persons with disabilities. If the student has a systematic physical, cognitive, or psychological disability and requires accommodations, she or he should contact the instructor by the second week of classes so arrangements can be made with the Center for Accommodations and Support Services (CASS) at 915-747-5148 or cass@utep.edu.

• If you would like help writing papers for this course (from brainstorming ideas to revising for grammar and content), please contact by email uwc@utep.edu or by phone 915-747-5112, or visit the University Writing Center located in Library 227.

REQUIRED TEXT

GRADE SCALE
90-100 = A
80-89 = B
70-79 = C
60-69 = D
59 and lower = F

READING AND TEACHING SCHEDULE¹

Monday, August 24

• Introduction to Course.

Wednesday, August 26

• Being a Philosopher

¹This schedule may be revised at Dr. Reed-Sandoval's discretion.

Monday, August 31

• Being a Philosopher
• Journal entry due today

Wednesday, September 2

• Being a Philosopher
• Journal entry due today

Monday, September 7

• No class – UTEP closed for Labor Day
• No journal entry due for today

Wednesday, September 9

• No class- Dr. Reed-Sandoval away at conference
• No journal entry due for today
• TAs will be holding extra office hours this week for students who want extra help on their journal assignments. Students who visit a TA this week to discuss improving their journal assignments are eligible for extra credit for their journal grade.

Monday, September 14

• Being a Philosopher
• Journal entry due today

Wednesday, September 16

• Being a Philosopher
• No journal entry due for today

Monday, September 21

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- Journal entry due today

Wednesday, September 23

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- In-class watch: The Truman Show (Peter Weir, 1998)
- No journal entry due for today

Monday, September 28

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- Journal entry due today

Wednesday, September 30

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- Journal entry due today

Monday, October 5

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- Journal entry due today
Wednesday, October 7

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- Journal entry due for today

Monday, October 12

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- No journal entry due for today

Wednesday, October 14

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- Journal entry due today

Monday, October 19

- Knowledge and Skepticism
- David Hume. An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding. Section IV, Parts I and II and Section V, Parts I and II
- Journal entry due today

Wednesday, October 21

- Wrap-up of unit on Knowledge and Skepticism
- No journal entry due for today
- Review for Midterm Exam

Monday, October 26
• Midterm Exam
• No journal entry due for today

Wednesday, October 28

• Feminist Epistemology/Situated Knowledge
• No journal entry due today

Monday, November 2

• Feminist Epistemology/Situated Knowledge
• Journal entry due today

Wednesday, November 4

• Feminist Epistemology/Situated Knowledge
• Journal entry due today

Monday, November 9

• Feminist Epistemology/Situated Knowledge
• Journal entry due today

Wednesday, November 11

• Feminist Epistemology/Situated Knowledge
• No journal entry due today

Monday, November 16

• Political Philosophy

- Journal entry due today

Wednesday, November 18

- Political Philosophy

- No journal entry due for today

Monday, November 23

- Political Philosophy

- Journal entry due today

Wednesday, November 25

- Political Philosophy

- Journal entry due today

Monday, November 30

- Political Philosophy

- No journal entry due for today

Wednesday, December 2

- Wrap-up of course and review for final exam

- No journal entry due for today
GUIDELINES FOR JOURNAL ENTRIES

The purpose of the “journal entries” writing assignment is to give you opportunities to practice critical thinking and writing, as well as argument reconstruction, while also giving you a forum in which to develop your own philosophical views. Here are the specific requirements for your journal entries:

In Paragraph 1 you should:

1. Identify, in no more than 1-2 sentences, the main claim of the philosophical text you have read for the day. What is the one main idea that the philosopher you are reading is trying to convince you of? State the main claim as clearly, concisely and accurately as you can. Often, in philosophy, less is more!

2. List the reasons that the philosopher gives in support of her main claim. What does the philosopher say to support her view? Try to list all of the reasons provided. As before, list them clearly, concisely and accurately.

In Paragraph 2 you should:

Give a short (5-6-sentence) response to the philosopher’s argument. Do you agree or disagree with the philosopher—and why? Give at least one compelling reason for your opinion. Don’t simply say: “because that’s how I feel” or “because that’s what my teachers taught me to believe”. Argue philosophically for your view!