Course Description

This course is a survey of socioeconomic and cultural characteristics of ethnic groups in the U.S. and how they affect the participation of these groups in the American education system. In addition, this course also examines how ethnic groups have historically impacted the American educational system through the development of ethnic studies courses. It includes examination of specific policies and practices in American institutions that promote or inhibit participation.

In addition, this course is about resistance and revolution of a people and what this tells us about our own identity, worldviews, environment, and ways of understanding education. Given that Chicano studies in the past has been presented as a political issues, this course has as much to do with cultural diversity issues in education, as it does with you, how education has informed your identity, and how you see the world. Essentially, this course is built around one central question, what is education? It seeks to uncover the politics behind the production of knowledge and examines how education, learning, and the retelling of history is deeply embedded in a politics of identity, a politics of production, and a politics of social control.
