Course Description

This course gives you an understanding of how political scientists study American public opinion. For democratic countries, the people are supposed to decide what course their country should take. Hence, people's opinions have real public policy outcomes that shape our world. You will learn how people form opinions about political issues, how they develop a general ideology, and how they develop an identification with a political party—among many other topics. There is a canon of knowledge in political science about how people develop political opinions. I will use this canonical approach in this class. The main goal of the class is for you to be able to navigate the vast political behavior literature. This is why I put so many extra readings in the syllabus (in case you wish to do further study). After studying this canon, we will move on to variegated topics on identity politics, political psychology, political communication and the news media, voting behavior, and rationality in political thinking.

Textbooks/Required Readings

Erikson, Robert and Kent Tedin (2014). American Public Opinion. 9th Edition (ET)

Jardina, Ashley (2019). White Identity Politics.

Course Outcomes

After successful completion of this course, the student should be able to

- Demonstrate knowledge and awareness of contemporary issues and their historical contexts;
- Demonstrate an understanding of the seminal works in the political behavior literature;
- Demonstrate sophisticated skills in reading these primary sources critically;
- Comprehend the process by which political scientists collect and analyze public opinion data;

- Understand the way in which political scientists go about forming hypotheses, testing them, and subsequently engage in debate when there is no consensus;
- Be able to apply the thought process of the political behavior literature to new situations.

UTEP EDGE

Students will be able to:

- Communicate information clearly and effectively using a variety of tools, media and genres (oral, written, iconographic) in varied contexts for a variety of purposes.
- Demonstrate strategic and adaptable thinking patterns in learning and working conditions.
- Apply analysis, synthesis, and evaluative processes that enable productive problem solving and decision-making to strengthen performance in university and workforce setting.
- Reflect and assess their interests, abilities, responsibilities, cultural understanding, and ethics in order to more effectively pursue their academic, career and life goals.
- Use real world digital tools, research, and resources to access, evaluate, and apply information appropriate for authentic tasks.

Evaluation

There will be four pop quiz exams. The midterm and the final are given in the schedule below. Your grade will depend on the following four items. Letter grades will be determined by a curve (percentiles of the class) of all of your scores added up.

Quizzes 4	20%
Midterm	30%
Final	35%
Term Paper	15%

Naturally, the midterm will cover all the material covered in lecture up to that point. The final is not comprehensive but will cover only topics after the midterm. The term paper will be about one of the topics we will over in this class, which I will decide at a later date and announce it through an email.

General Course Policies

I expect you to take reasonable actions if anything comes up during the semester. For example, if you must be absent from the midterm due to an emergency (such as being hospitalized), you need to email me as soon as possible when you are capable of doing so. Be sure to take obtain all the necessary paperwork.

I do not plan on making any major changes to this syllabus (the lecture schedule may change slightly based on how fast/long I take to finish each lecture). But if I do change the syllabus, I will let you know through email.

Email will be my main method of communication with you. If you are not receiving my emails, please notify me immediately because each email will contain important announcements.

There is to be no talking in class. When I am giving lectures, you are allowed to use a laptop but only to take class notes.
